On a cold winter's morning in 1867, nineteen years ago, a person knocked at the door of my house. He was promptly addressed by the policeman's insignia of authority. At once he made known his business by inquiring if a girl—given to him by her parents—had been received in the afternoon. She had as recently sought employment with us as had any. The policeman asked if it would be safe to let her into our room. We readily granted his request. He went to her room, and very soon took her away in a manner somewhat brusque and not very tender, charging her with having been a bad girl, and that she had last lived. She was a fine looking, bright, sprightly girl. She seemed much attached to the members of the household, and as she passed out of our home, she cast towards me an earnest, pleading look, and sympathized with me in my trouble. I told her to go, and she did so. I immediately wrote and presented the following order: "That the Committee of authorizing the Governor to appoint a commissioner whose duty shall be to investigate the condition of the Agricultural School for Girls, and report to the next legislature as to the expediency of establishing such an institution in this State." The order was at once carried out, as pointing to a new appropriation of money for novel and well-aimed purpose, the commissioner to be chosen by the Secretary, and J. M. Deering was appointed a committee. They reported the whole number of votes at 15, all of which were for Burrill. The bill was introduced by the President of the Board. Mr. Burrill accepted the position graciously, saying he deemed it an honor to be chosen, and that the object of his mission was the elevation of the farmer and the advancement of agriculture. While he himself had not contributed to the creation of the school, he thanked his associates for the honor conferred, and their confidence, and asked their cooperation in its success.

The same committee served on the vote for Vice President, and A. B. Burrill was elected.

On motion of Mr. Harris, President Fernald was authorized to cast the vote of the Board for General George F. Shepley, and the bill was passed.

The committee had reported a resolution for the appointment of a commissioner whose duty should be to investigate the condition of the Agricultural School for Girls, and report to the next legislature as to the expediency of establishing such an institution in this State.

The Governor and Council will meet the 25th inst. The matter of the appointment of a special constable for the enforcement of the liquor law in Aroostook county will be acted upon.

Henry A. Wing, who for several years past has creditably filled the position of city editor of the "Advertiser," closed the column of the "Advertiser" on the Saturday. He will be succeeded by Mr. Tryon, formerly of the Portland Press.

Francis Murphy, standing upon a bench in a mill and relating the simple story of a millman whose life had been changed by signing the pledge, persuaded over 300 men to do likewise at Youngstown, O., one day last week. During the week over 1000 signed the pledge.

The Board of Managers of the State Experimental Farm will meet in annual session at the State House, Tuesday, the following members of the Board being present: Z. A. Gilbert, Turner; S. L. Bourland, Augusta; B. F. Pease, Cornish; William Downes, Secy. Prof. Walter Ballantine of the State College was absent on account of sickness.

On account of the pressing necessities of the State, Mr. Ballantine, and the other members of the Board, will be present in session for our issue of next week after next. We have reports from every hand of the high value in which these letters are held, and the breeding journals throughout the country are copying from them freely.

This country in years gone by has built up a fine foreign trade in its homes and excellent dairy products. In the last few years manufacturers of butter have taken advantage of this trade and have been selling enormous quantities of oleo-margarine to our foreign customers, to the great damage of the trade in the real article. In the last few years the real article has sold over 100,000,000 pounds of butter, and oleo-margarine were exported against 54,100,000 pounds of actual butter.

The Secretary of the Treasury has made a decision of interest to Maine people as an established precedent in like cases. He has decided that the public building in Pittsburg shall be built of granite instead of limestone, and that the materials in the building in the world will be likely to get a large share of the contract. Indeed, the Rodwell Company of Hallsworth, has just secured a $500,000 contract to furnish the granite for the reconstruction of the Equitable Insurance building on Broadway, N. Y. It is to be a magnificient structure, and will be built.

An application has been made to the Board of Trade in Boston to have a license to do business in foreign trade, and the application has been granted. The application was made by Mr. John H. Farnsworth, of Boston, who has a large amount of foreign trade, and has been engaged in foreign trade for many years.
